Midwest Poultry Federation Announces 2013 Education Program

Workshops Cover Topics for Turkeys, Broilers, Egg Layers and Organic/Specialty Poultry

(Buffalo, MN)...The 2013 Midwest Poultry Federation (MPF) Convention is pleased to announce its comprehensive education program, featuring nearly 40 speakers from across the country covering the latest information and research at a variety of workshops for the turkey, egg, broiler and organic/specialty poultry industries.

All workshops will be held at the 42nd annual 2013 MPF Convention, March 12-14, at the Saint Paul RiverCentre, St. Paul, MN.

“The MPF Convention has a long-standing reputation for excellence in education,” said MPF President Allen Behl, Behl Turkey Farm in Watertown, Wisconsin, who represents the Wisconsin Poultry and Egg Industries on the MPF Board. “We aim to provide our attendees with only the best speakers and topics that provide meaningful and useful learning tools for their farms and businesses.”

Among the topics to be presented include egg layer housing performance and environmental impact, Newcastle disease, light turkey syndrome, salmonella, coccidiosis, poultry barn ventilation, poultry litter topics and so much more.

The full education schedule of 11 workshops – coordinated by Dr. Ken Koelkebeck of the University of Illinois, Dr. Darrin Karcher of Michigan State University, and several workshop chairpersons – is available at <http://midwestpoultry.com/education-program/>.

About MPF

Midwest Poultry Federation’s (MPF) primary purpose is to host an annual regional convention emphasizing on-farm poultry production. The convention’s goal is to offer innovative and compelling information to attendees through a balanced offering of exhibits and educational workshops.

MPF’s mission is to conduct and support those educational, promotional and policy advocacy issues that will enhance the viability and growth of the poultry industry. Revenue generated by the convention goes back to MPF’s members and to support various poultry programs.
